

Move over, cucumber

MONDAY, 12 MAY 2008

It seemed like a fun idea at the time. But clubbing three nights in a row? Trying every obscure martini on the menu? Saddle up, eyebags!

Shocked by the haggard tart who greeted us in the bathroom mirror Sunday morning, we immediately reached for a pack of EyeSlices in the fridge. We staggered over to the couch and placed the re-usable patches over our troubled lids (Ahhhh).

Made of a slippery hydrogel, soaked in aloe peptides, soy and rice peptides, EyeSlices (US $20) go way beyond the old-fashioned cucumber treatment. With the same active ingredient as Preparation H, the puffiness around our eyes vanished in 10 minutes. Cool and calming, we felt the active ingredients working their magic on our embattled eye area. (And the fresh scent reminded us of the mint martinis from the night before).

Now we just need to save our liver.
